wilderness retreat with the modern amenities and dining you usually get at a big-city hotel." Adirondack-style buildings made of rough stone and deep-grained wood house "cozy but elegant accommodations" ranging from private log cabins with stained-glass accents to rooms with vaulted ceilings in Tudor-style cottages. Guests extol "all the specialty food items," like the ice cream served at Frosty's, in a vintage Airstream. "There's so much to do or nothing to do, depending on how you like it," including "great bass fishing in the lake." A cookie lady visits every room before turndown.

THE GOLD STANDARD

BEST SPOT TO BANISH WRITER'S BLOCK

Attention, all aspiring writers: Head straight to the Café Laurent, at the Hôtel d'Aubusson in Paris, where no less than Jean-Paul Sartre, Simone de Beauvoir, and Albert Camus were frequent visitors. May you be similarly inspired.

BEST ARGUMENT FOR GLOBALIZATION

Some hotels strive to emulate local design, but Hong Kong's Island Shangri-La embraces the world. Its interiors include Brazilian mahogany woodwork, Thai timber handrails, Portuguese and Spanish marble, and Austrian crystal chandeliers.
