

Hotels

Marriott announces Homes & Villas by Marriott International, over 2,000 highly curated homes in 100 destinations throughout the United States, Europe, the Caribbean, and Latin America. For example: a four-bedroom cottage on six private acres in California's wine country; an oceanfront villa in Anguilla with private beach and personal butler; a fully staffed 18th-century Irish castle (above) with private lake for boating and fishing. homesandvillasbymarriott.com

One of few remaining Gilded Age mansions in the Berkshires, Blantyre (below) looks and feels like the country estate of an indulgent uncle with an excellent chef, world-class wine cellar, and North America's only Dom Pérignon Champagne Salon. The Lenox, Massachusetts, mainstay reopened last May following major renovations. Upgrade to the original Manor House, Carriage House, or one of the elegantly updated cottages. From $1,025; blantyre.com

West Hollywood's Hotel 850 (built to house railroad workers 100 years ago) has been rebooted as a sunny hideaway. Each Rita Konig-designed room is different—some are sea grass green and some vanilla-dipped. A rooftop deck with an outdoor fireplace (below) offers hazy views of DTLA. From $275/night, includes continental breakfast; number850.com

Designed by the eponymous fitness brand, Equinox Hotel in NYC's Hudson Yards integrates wellness with luxury. Guest rooms, including beds with a COCO-MAT mattress, have been designed to optimize sleep. The hotel has a 27,000-square-foot spa (with multiple pools, cryotherapy chambers, and an infrared spa) and a 60,000-square-foot gym. From $700/night; hudsonyardsnewyork.com

Adjacent to the Parrish Art Museum in the Long Island hamlet of Water Mill, the 13-room, Japanese- and Scandinavian-inspired Shou Sugi Ban House (below) offers restorative three-, four-, or six-night stays that include sound baths, Reiki, meditation, yoga, walks on the beach, and veggie-based meals. $4,650/three nights, all-inclusive; shousugibanhouse.com

In the center of Victoria's dockside arts-and-design district, Rosewood Hong Kong towers an impressive 65 stories to house 322 guest rooms and 91 suites set among well-tended gardens of oversize bonsai and fanciful topiary. A jazz-age bar serves vintage spirits; within the walk-in humidior find rare cigars from around the globe. From $548/night; rosewoodhotels.com

The vision of American conservation philanthropist Louis Bacon, Islas Secas Reserve & Lodge in Chiriqui Province, Panama, keeps just nine casitas for access to its private, 14-island archipelago. Explore the area with private guides who facilitate experiences like diving with sharks and fishing the pristine waters. From $2,000/person, all-inclusive; islassecas.com

Enjoy an elevated beach experience—literally. The Jersey Shore's new 54-room Asbury Ocean Club Hotel occupies the fourth floor of the posh residential Asbury Ocean Club. Huge windows overlook expansive terraces with views of the Atlantic or sweeping sand-dune gardens. Lounge on deep sofas and sunken beds by the pool; enjoy the services of a dedicated butler at the beach. From $200; asburyoceanclub.com

Courtesy Images: From Top: Homes & Villas by Marriott International; Shou Sugi Ban House/Fredrika Stjame; Hotel 850/Laure Joliet; Blantyre/Scott Barrow. Opposite Page, Courtesy Images: From Top: Rosewood/Ryan Forbes; Beverly Hills Hotel; Casa Maria Luigia/Callo Albanese e Sueo

Glamorous and fun, Rosewood Miramar Beach (above) in Montecito is billionaire L.A. developer Rick Caruso's first hotel: 161 eye-catching guest rooms, suites, and bungalows on 16 leafy acres. Make the rounds among an open-air beach bar and seven restaurants. From $800/night; rosewoodhotels.com

Inspired by JFK and Jackie's White House years, TWA Hotel at JFK Airport opens with 512 ultra-quiet guest rooms. Furnished with Eero Saarinen-designed mid-century modern furniture, vintage rotary phones, and terrazzo-tiled bathrooms with Hollywood-style vanities. Watch planes arrive from the rooftop infinity pool. Eat dinner (based on historic TWA menus) at Jean-Georges' Paris Café. From $249; twahotel.com

Outside Modena, Italy, the 12-room, 200-year-old Casa Maria Luigia (named after chef Massimo Bottura's mother) features pastel-tiled baths (below), an eat-in kitchen for breakfast, and a music-listening room (Bottura collects vintage LPs). Dinner is served in Casa delle Carrozze, the repurposed carriage house, and guests can dine at chef Bottura's 12-table, three-Michelin-star Osteria Francescana. From $500/night; casamarialuigia.com

RENOVATION RECAP

The Beverly Hills Hotel has been restoring its legendary bungalows (far right), favored by Hollywood royalty for retreats and trysts. Recently unveiled: bungalows that were favorites of Marilyn Monroe (Number 1—Dom Pérignon, Chanel-scented bath amenities) and Howard Hughes (Number 3—exotic woods, mysterious, and moody). Bungalow 9, inspired by Charlie Chaplin, debuts in July. Bungalows from $2,900; dorchestercollection.com

Devastated by Hurricane Irma in 2017, Le Sereno St. Barth's reveals a complete makeover—rebuilt modernist bungalows, a new spa and fitness center, and a reimagined restaurant that extends to the water's edge. From $850; serenohotels.com

Belmond Cadogan Hotel, London opens following a four-year, $48 million renovation. Each of the 54 rooms has exclusive access to private gardens and tennis courts on the historic 93-acre Cadogan Estate in the heart of Chelsea. Marble bathrooms. Fresh flowers everywhere. From $600; belmond.com

The Wauwinet, Nantucket underwent a top-to-bottom renovation—just in time for summer sailing, swimming, playing tennis, and having picnics on the beach. A pre-arrival concierge sets up everything from bicycle rentals to difficult-to-snap restaurant reservations. From $195; wauwinet.com >

On 3,500 wild acres near Park City, Utah, The Lodge at Blue Sky, part of the Auberge Resorts Collection, facilitates a range of excursions such as sunrise horseback rides (followed by a campfire breakfast), fly fishing, and mountain biking. While recovering, sip local High West Distillery whiskey (Utah's first legal hooch since 1870). From $700/night; aubegeresorts.com

Well-sited to overlook some of the Dolomites' grandest peaks, the just-opened Adler Lodge Ritten is rustic and remote—reachable only by a single, limited-access road. Rooms and social spaces are pure and unfussy. Three saunas—two deep in the forest. From $269/person/day, all-inclusive; adler-resorts.com

After a top-to-toe transformation, Santa Monica's secluded Oceana debuts 70 suites with ocean views decorated in Southern California—chic beachy colors and spotlighting the work of Los Angeles artists. The members-only restaurant sources hyper-local ingredients from the Santa Monica Farmers Market. The lush courtyard (with a pool and lounge) was designed by in-demand Hamptons landscape architect Perry Guillot. Guided yoga on the beach. From $525; hoteloceanasantamonica.com